From blindness to brightness

Of all the tragedies of the human sufferings due to physical handicap, blindness tops the list for good many reasons. It would need more than a human heart to understand the plight of those miserable people. Beyond any dispute it has been openly accepted that those people are enormously gifted in other fields which powers them to self-affirmation and enables them to approach life with the positive frame of mind. An insight into life, indeed! Let us stop being negative and blind.

Even though the blind man in the gospel was shown the door after his efforts to get into the pool were futile, he did not lose his hope. Perhaps he was ready for something special. That one-in-lifetime-moment came to him and he grabbed it with both hands. After his encounter with Jesus, he moves from physical blindness to the bright 'light of faith' going to the extent of challenging the leaders who were spiritually blind themselves and blindfolded others by their disbelief.

Lent invites us to employ Christ as a 'photometer' that measures the brightness of light or clarity of sight - and examine our 'eyes of faith'. We could ruminate over the readings and ask ourselves, "Do we look at reality with God's eyes?" May the Lord of light illumine our hearts and lives to look, see and believe! Another ordinary person with the extraordinary faith to inspire us!

Fr. Amal

CITY OF GOD, CITY OF MAN

We are warned against being found, when the end comes, mere children of this world and of its great cities; with tastes, opinions, habits, such as are found in its cities; with a heart dependent on human society, and a reason molded by it against finding ourselves at the last day, before our Judge, with all the low feelings, principles, and aims which the world encourages.

Surely, with this prospect before us, we cannot bear to give ourselves up to thoughts of ease and comfort, of making money, settling well, or rising in the world. Surely, with this prospect before us, we cannot but feel that we are in the best estate ... pilgrims, watchers waiting for the morning, waiting for the light, eagerly straining our eyes for the first dawn of day — looking out for our Lord's coming, His glorious advent, when He will end the reign of sin and wickedness, accomplish the number of His elect, and perfect those who at present struggle with infirmity, yet in their hearts love and obey Him.

--Blessed John Henry Cardinal Newman

Reflection questions:

How do you live out in your own life the Lenten practices of prayer, fasting and almsgiving?
 What have you learned about yourself, your faith, and God through your own Lenten Practices?
